

A surreal, dreamlike oil painting with soft pastel colors and a fisheye lens perspective. The scene is a dim bedroom bathed in warm lamp light and cool moonlight. On the left, a nightstand holds a lit lamp and a vase of wilted flowers. The right side shows a messy bed with pillows and blankets strewn on the floor. A rug lies beneath a few toys, including a small toy train. A painting hangs beside an open door where ghostly figures are seen walking away. The central figure — faceless and anonymous — is now facing the open door, reaching out desperately toward the departing figures, embodying loneliness and yearning. The figure should kneel on the floor, with arms extended, bathed in soft, swirling hues of purples, blues, and oranges.

Make it a portrait and make the colors pastel. No moon inside the room
